PSPDFKit Server development licenses

PSPDFKit Server has been deprecated and replaced by Document Engine. To migrate to Document Engine and unlock advanced document processing capabilities, refer to our migration guide. Learn more about these enhancements on our blog.

PSPDFKit for Web and PSPDFKit Server can be activated with a production or development key.

When running PSPDFKit Server as part of your development environment, QA, or staging deployment, you must use a development key as opposed to a production key.

A development key does not restrict the allowed `Origin`, which allows you to test and develop conveniently.

You can get the development key from the PSPDFKit Portal:

If you run PSPDFKit Standalone, request a license key in the PSPDFKit Portal via the Request License Key for Web Beta Usage button. Learn more about Licenses here
